Reynolda Hall

West Chapel

It is toilet paper whispering a cheer of victory for the Demon Deacons. It is lines at registration winding ominously out of Reynolda Hall. It is "Romantic Poets" with the Provost, "History of the South" with Dr. Smiley or "Camus" with Germaine Brée. It is towering facades of Georgian red brick and the fragrant scent of magnolia. It is strolls in the gardens on a balmy southern afternoon or sledding with pit trays on a rare snowy night. It is roadtrips to Myrtle, sundowns on Sauratown Mountain, open house, champagne mixers, meal tickets, serenades and panty raids. It is squabbles with the Baptists and women in Efird. It is a candlelight Lovefeast or a night with the Atlanta Rhythm Section. It is roller skating through the zoo and the Rocky Horror Picture Show in De-Tamble. It is classes in Tribble Hall, Worrell House and Casa Artom. It is memories of Sparky, Micky Mouse in the clock and the rooster on the quad. It is the canopy of color on Reynolda Road in the fall and the smell of tobacco in the cool night air.

It is the molding of character, the education of the mind and the rounding of a personality expressed through a collage of images and a chronicle of experiences. This is what it means to be a student at Wake Forest.

The 1980 Howler proudly presents the publication of it.

Doing it 6

Wake Forest students never cease to find expression through a variety of extracurricular activities. They do it in new topsiders, in their steppin' shoes, on campus, in the streets of Winston-Salem, in the Fine Arts and over the ocean. Whatever it is, they are always doing something.

Playing it 58

Sports events highlight every season with a particular kind of excitement. Whether as a Tangerine Bowl-bound football squad or a winning tennis team, the Demon Deacons always play it, at least in spirit, like champions.

Into it 108

Another facet of Wake Forest student life entails more formalized involvement in various campus organizations. Participation in them may range from service-oriented endeavors to group activities planned simply for exercise, entertainment, and fun.

Saying it in Greek . . . 154

Fraternities and societies find that the first step towards a well-rounded and companionable social life starts with learning how to say it in Greek.

ENTS

Keeping it in line . . . 180

As liaison between the student body and the external world, the administration interprets and promotes the conception of the University as an academic institution. And, of course, the administration is also responsible for supplying the framework of order and discipline so necessary for the University's smooth operation. Wake Forest wouldn't be Wake Forest without someone keeping it all in line.

Teaching it 190

The ideals and goals of a liberal arts education come into focus in the classroom, for, it is here that the student finds the means for meshing intellectual pursuit with practical application. Through personal involvement with the student both inside and outside the academic environment, members of the faculty strive to teach it, liberal learning, as a way of living.

Part of it 224

Whether as a spectator or performer, devoted student or ardent party-er, participant or leader, the Wake Forest man or woman is first and foremost considered to be an integral part of it, the 3,000-strong student body.

Taking it with you . . . 288

The University Bulletin proudly affirms that Wake Forest educates men and women not only for a profession but for life. In this sense, the Wake Forest experience does not stop with the conferring of a diploma and degree but involves taking what it meant to achieve these things with you.

Doing it

In New Topsiders

Meeting in Dean House 8/26/79

"A few clothing stereotypes exist on campus," the Student Handbook helpfully tried to warn the pre-Wake Forest freshman anxious to know just how it was done right at college. "You may hear terms," it continued, "such as khaki, topsider, or Izod spoken of with certain joking familiarity."

Of course there were those who knew that such expressions were merely harmless descriptions of a typically collegiate brand of pants, shoe and shirt. But for the majority of those who didn't, this vital fashion information only fostered greater anxieties and visions of ultimate rejection.

Some actually made it to orientation with Sperry Topsiders, a rainbow of Izods and Red Camel khakis from Belk's basement. But those who didn't, and, indeed, those who did, soon discovered that it didn't really matter. Amid the whirl of orientation events, the pangs of homesickness, a swarm of new friends and the panic of registration, clothing became the most minor of concerns.

Ironically enough, the particularly conscientious freshman soon noticed that he couldn't quite blend into the mainstream with the total grace and nonchalance his increasing confidence desired. How was it that he could faultlessly be pinpointed as a freshman? Unlike his fellow students, the white was too white, the brown too brown. He was doing it in new topsiders.

ENROLLMENT: 4,736 total enrollment; 3,286 in the College of Arts and Sciences of which 1,994 are men and 1,292 are women; 220 in the Graduate School; 506 in the Law School; 428 in the Bowman Gray School of Medicine; 203 in the Babcock Graduate School of Management.

UNDERGRADUATE ADMISSIONS: 4,000 applications received for 840 available spaces; approximately 82% of freshmen graduated in the top fifth of their high school class.

and the other (the more "functional" as a college gathering place). Although the school's reputation is well deserved, what's lost (understandably) is a strong following. There, during freshman year, I was introduced to a number of the same overactive, the bar had less than 100 people.

Apparently, the students (and the strong boys). The music, the dance, the crowd, the boys and girls, and the crowds, and some friends. The atmosphere is different. There's a continual, constant, social, and (sometimes) persistent, but rather hard to be a certain, certain, first, introducing the (or) others. There are friends, and (or) friends, (or) friends, and the other (or) friends.

Back To Ole Wake

On the old campus 9/28/79

When 12 busloads of people, mostly freshmen and alumni, started out at 8 a.m. on the grey and wet morning of September 29 for the 150-mile trek to Wake Forest, N.C., things looked pretty bleak. Well-made plans for a leisurely day of sightseeing for some and reminiscing for others was drastically disrupted by the mandates of regional television which suddenly shifted the evening game (Wake Forest vs. N.C. State) to 1:00 in the afternoon. Yet, despite the rain, hectic schedule and disappointing 17-14 Deacon loss to the Wolfpack, the day was not a total loss.

No one could help being caught up, even if briefly, in the spirit that was and still is old Wake Forest. As the buses toured the campus, familiar sights met the eye at every turn; stately red-brick buildings, imposing white columns and spire on a lofty chapel, green grass and shady magnolias all served as visual reminders that the Winston-Salem Wake Forest originated only 23 years ago from a more historic legacy.

The campus is now inhabited by the Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary, but in the memories of those who still live in the town as well as of those who moved with the school to Winston-Salem, old Wake Forest still lives on. Mrs. Opal Weatherly, a participant in the trek, lived on the old campus for about 10 years with her husband who was then, as now, the superintendent of buildings and grounds. Summing up her feelings about returning, she says, "People are always so glad to see us when we come back." And, indeed, if an air of peaceful, almost rural solitude so characteristic of the Winston-Salem campus is any indication, Wake Forest never really left.

BRUCE LEE
DOUBLE FEATURE

In The Streets

One of the givens of life at Wake Forest is a certain limitation to the variety of entertainment available on campus. After a few months, the endless cycle of classes, pit food, and campus parties begins to lose its luster. Eventually, every Wake Forest student begins to look for off-campus alternatives. Originally, he limits himself to a quick ten-minute jaunt up University Parkway to the 30th Street juncture of Pizza Garden, TUG, and Safari Room. The more adventurous student might slip outside a three mile radius of Wait Chapel and explore such exotic nightspots at Henry's Pub (15 Brookstown Ave.) or Los Amigos (Mexican Restaurant).

It takes a little longer for the realization to sink in that Winston-Salem also exists in the daytime. But inevitably Wake students discover the character of the city apart from the college. From such earthy delights as the Farmer's Market and R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. to the more esoteric pleasures of the Winston-Salem Symphony and SECCA, it is a city of contrasts. Of course, between the contrasts are things that are just plain fun. Streetscene and the Dixie Classic Fair offer a chance to get off campus, have a good time, and forget the pressures of school. Those with a little more time can trek up to the mountains in the fall to look at the leaves, then go back in January for the skiing.

Anyway you look at it, for four years Winston-Salem is home for 3,000 Wake Forest students. In this way it's like any other college town, it can be participated in or ignored. But when the maynolia-lined walkways begin to close in, there's always lots to do in the streets of Winston-Salem.

JANE COUCH oct. 1-dec. 7

Unbeknown to many students, Wake Forest participates with the North Carolina School of the Arts and the Southeastern Center for Contemporary Art in an artist-in-residence program sponsored by the Rockefeller Foundation. A three year grant provides funds for the stay of two nationally prominent artists a year, as well as enabling many more, shorter, visits by a wide variety of artists. Theodora Skiptares, a performance artist from New York, was in Winston-Salem in the Spring. In Fall 1979, Winston-Salem's artist-in-residence was the New York City painter Jane Couch. A conversation with her was somewhat deceptive, for the quiet articulation of her views could have belonged as easily to a visiting English professor as to an artist. However, instead of Shakespeare, she was explaining the details of pattern painting. More precisely, she was explaining the details of her painting; for the label of pattern painter is one which she has neither chosen nor especially likes. Art critic John Perreault has written, "Pattern painting can be divided into two clear subdivisions: the decorative and the conceptual. . . . Jane Couch is not overtly decorative, nor is she particularly mathematical or systematic in her pattern-making. Her kind of painting overlaps both wings of pattern painting, perhaps falling within a third yet unnamed subdivision." In any case, her presence on campus added a new dimension to the arts at Wake Forest. Following are excerpts from an interview in which she talked about the origin and development of her work and about her stay in Winston-Salem.

Q. How did you get involved with this style of work?

A. Well, there was a period a few years ago when I was very unsatisfied with my painting so I quit for about a year. I didn't want to paint again until I could be excited about my work. In the meantime I kept up my knitting on a sweater I was working on. I gradually became fascinated with the patterns of weaving and knitting and began to use them in my painting.

Q. How long have you been working on this particular painting?

A. I've been working on this one since June. I brought it with me to finish.

Q. The colors in it are really nice, especially those reds and oranges. What kind of paint is that?

A. It's done in oil. I tend to get a little carried away with the paint. I put it on very thick and some of those colors, especially the reds and oranges you just commented on, are pretty expensive.

About nine dollars a tube. But I like the way they kind of pop out at you, while other ones sink back into the canvas.

Q. What do you think of the arts in Winston-Salem? I mean, do they do more than just make cigarettes here?

A. I think there's a big emphasis on the arts here. Certainly more than in most towns this size. For one thing, SECCA is here. It also seems that the people in the community really want the arts here. It's nice to have people in the community who want to support the arts — financially and otherwise.

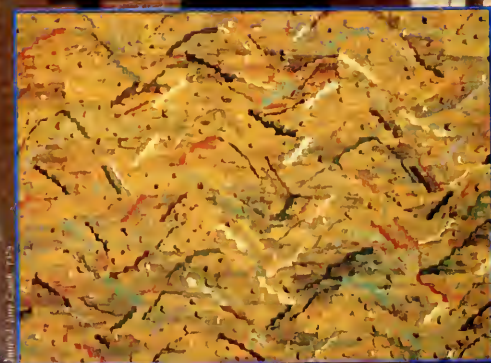

Q. How about our department here at Wake Forest? I know that it's grown a tremendous amount in the four years that I've been at Wake Forest. How would you compare it with other schools around the country?

A. This is a good department. The faculty and the facilities both compare well with what I've seen at other places.

Q. How about the students?

A. Really good. In fact, I think the work of the art students here is comparable to graduate work that I've seen being done at some other institutions.

Over The Ocean

London, Fall, 1978

Academic life at Wake Forest need not be limited by the boundaries of Reynolda Road, University Parkway or the city of Winston-Salem, for, as the Bulletin affirms, liberal arts education at Wake Forest is also international. Opportunities for study abroad are unlimited and range from year-long exchange scholarships with universities in Berlin, Columbia and Orleans, to four-week lightning tours through Europe under the direction of a particular department. These excursions also take students as far as Russia and South America.

The most popular choice, however, for study abroad seems to be participation in the Venice, London, Dijon, and Spain programs. In 1974 the University purchased the former American consulate on the Grand Canal in Venice which, under the name of Casa Artom, houses up to twenty students each semester. Approximately sixteen students spend a semester in a large, Victorian house in suburban London acquired by the University in 1977 through the patronage of Mr. Eugene Worrell. Together with a faculty member and Italian and British professors, students study selected courses focusing on the culture and history of each country. In France and Spain, students live with families and study at the University of Dijon or the University of Salamanca for a semester.

Wake Forest students, then, at least those who venture over the ocean, do it not only on a homey 320-acre campus but also in the back alleys of the Champs d'Elysses and the streets of Picadilly Circus.

Playing it

By any standard of measure 1979 proved to be a banner year for Wake Forest football. In a complete and drastic turnaround from the previous two seasons, the team virtually rewrote the record book and picked up eight wins and an opportunity to play in Orlando's Tangerine Bowl in the process. No Wake Forest team has ever won more games or gained more yardage than the 1979 Deacs.

Nicknamed the "Cinderella team," the squad gained national attention and attracted record crowds throughout the season. With a previously redshirted, unknown quarterback at the helm, and a young, inexperienced coach on the sidelines, the Deacs appeared predestined to finish again in the ACC cellar. Yet after eight games, Wake had compiled an excellent 7-1 record, was ranked 14th among the nation's elite, and had moved itself into contention for a post-season bowl bid. The team finished the regular season with a 9-3 record and faced LSU in the Tangerine Bowl.

Despite a late-season lag in which the squad dropped two of its last three games, the team's accomplishments for the season were awesome. All told, almost 40 school records were broken or tied, including eight conference records. Jay Venuto completed more passes for more yards than any other ACC quarterback ever. His favorite receiver, Wayne Baumgardner, set a new conference mark for touchdowns caught and established two new school records; also James McDougald, the all-time leading Wake Forest rusher and scorer, gained over 1200 yards and broke six records. Defensively, no other Wake Forest team has ever forced more turnovers.

The best attention focused on the team and the bowl invitation were expected to facilitate the recruiting process. However, replacing the senior standouts of the 1978 squad presents Coach Mackovic with a difficult task. But Deacon fans would like nothing more than to believe that 1979 was the start of a new winning tradition.

After a last-minute 30-23 victory over Appalachian State to open the season, the Deacons embarked on a string of upsets by defeating then 12th ranked Georgia, 22-21. As the Bulldogs celebrated the 50th birthday of Stanford Stadium before a full house crowd, Wake outran and outpassed the Dogs before holding off three late scoring threats to seal the victory. The deadly Venuto-to-Baumgardner passing attack, demonstrated against Georgia proved even more effective against ECU as the Deacons boosted their record to 3-0 and Venuto established an ACC record for completions. A 40-yard Phil Denfield field goal midway through the final period and a stubborn fourth quarter defense gave the Deacs a 23-20 win.

Wake lost its first game on a rainy Saturday at NC State, 17-14. After a game-winning State field goal late in the game, a last-minute Deacon drive ended in a fumble in State territory. Travelling to Virginia Tech the following week, Wake needed two fourth quarter touchdowns to defeat the Gobblers, 19-14, the game again being decided in the final minutes.

Defense was the key to Wake's 24-19 victory over UNC, October 13. All-conference Carolina tailback Amos Lawrence was held to scarcely a yard per carry average. Two fourth quarter touchdowns again provided the margin the Deacs needed. On October 20, the squad bettered its record to 6-1 and broke into the Top Twenty for the first time since 1944 by defeating Maryland, 25-17. Defense again was a key factor as the Terps failed to manage a touchdown until the waning minutes of the game.

The season climaxed October 27, when the confident 6-1 Deacons rolled into a packed house at Groves Stadium and stood toe-to-toe with perennial powerhouse Auburn, ranked 13th nationally. After the teams played to a 21-20 standoff midway through the second quarter, Auburn converted a long scoring drive and two Wake fumbles into a 38-20 halftime lead. Enlivened by Coach Mackovic's lockerroom speech and James McDougald's record breaking four touchdowns, the Deacs turned three long second half drives into touchdowns while the defense shut the Tiger scoring machine completely down. As Venuto broke his own record for single game passing yardage, the defense withstood two fourth quarter Auburn drives by forcing turnovers late in the game.

Ranked 14th and in the national limelight, the Deacs went to Clemson November 3 only to be humiliated 31-0 in a regionally televised game. The physical Tiger team combined a power running attack with frequent Wake mistakes in routing the Deacs and virtually eliminating the squad's chance for a share of the ACC title. After a 17-14 victory over Duke, memorable only for Frank Harnisch's last-second field goal in a muddy downpour and James McDougald's 200 plus yards rushing, the Deacs were once again clouted in South Carolina, this time by USC. Though the teams played evenly until halftime, a second half barrage of Wake Forest turnovers eventually led to a 35-14 loss. The suffering was alleviated only by the team's lockerroom acceptance of a Tangerine Bowl invitation.

An emotionally inspired LSU team, playing its last game for Head Coach Charley MacLendon, prevented the Deacs from capturing that elusive ninth win. Trailing 24-3 at the half, the team momentarily staged a second half comeback, but, once again, key turnovers sealed the Deacon's fate. LSU walked away with the victory, 34-10.

Under the direction of Coach George Kennedy, the soccer club spent its last year of existence playing an intensive schedule of ranked teams in anticipation of its 1980 debut as a NCAA varsity squad. The demanding assortment of teams was part of Coach Kennedy's extensive training to prepare for an enormous 1980 schedule which includes both nationally ranked independents and traditionally tough ACC opponents.

Coach Kennedy comes to Wake Forest with a long history of success. He trained the team constantly during the off-season with a vigorous program that included both winter and indoor soccer. Team members responded enthusiastically.

With a strong, young nucleus returning to join a cluster of new recruits, the prospects for the Deacs' first season look bright. The hard work during the off-season should make the Deacons immediate competitors. However, a relentless schedule that includes many well established powers prevents anyone from being hastily optimistic.

What was perhaps the most critical play affecting the men's basketball team in 1979-80 occurred long before the season even started. Frank Johnson injured his ankle in a pickup game, and, after dressing for Wake's first few games, decided to wait until next season to use his remaining year of eligibility.

After narrowly missing an upset of Duke in the season opener, Wake lost to NC State the following night to finish last in the Big Four tournament for the third consecutive year. In the time between the Big Four and the start of the ACC schedule, the team won six games while losing only to Temple away from home.

During that time, the team played consistently well against non-conference foes.

The conference season started January 2 at Virginia, where Wake Forest never regained from an early Virginia lead. Against Maryland and UNC, Deacon fans got a preview of a problem that was to plague the team all year long: the inability to protect a lead in the final minutes of a game. Wake lost both games in the final minutes.

The Deacs picked up their first conference win behind Chuck Dahms at home against Clemson. But the Clemson win was followed by a disappointing loss to Duke in which Wake built a 66-60 lead only to lose 67-66 in the last minute. Ballhandling mistakes were a key factor in the loss.

A victory over non-conference foe Appalachian and a loss to UNC ended the first half of the conference season.

The second half of the ACC schedule started off with a smooth win over new conference member Georgia Tech. In the following game, against Duke, Wake jumped out to a 31-15 lead and appeared heading for consecutive conference victories. But a flurry of turnovers at the hands of the Duke press enabled the Blue Devils to gain the lead by halftime and go on to a bitter second half blowout.

The next game, at home against Virginia, was the most exciting of the season, ending with Alvis Roger's swish shot as time expired to give the team its third conference win. The Virginia game was followed by a loss to Clemson.

NC State used its slow down tactics to defeat the Deacs at Raleigh on February 11. Wake finally got back-to-back wins with last minute victories over both Davidson and Georgia Tech at home.

The Deacs finished the regular season with an unspectacular 13-13 record after two late season losses. The first occurred at Maryland when a second half rally fell short after the team came back from a 15 point halftime deficit. The second, at home against NC State, resulted when State gained early control of the game and utilized their slowdown tactics once again.

The Deacs finished the season with a 4-10 conference record, edging out only newcomer Georgia Tech in the final conference standings. The team played second place finisher UNC in the first round of the tournament, which was yet to be played when the Howler went to press.

With Frank Johnson back in action next season and the four sophomores who formed the nucleus of the 1979-80 squad having had another year's experience, next year's club should undoubtedly improve on this year's record. The team will definitely have the potential for a high conference finish in 1980-81.

Rebounding from a weak 6 — 20 record the year before, the Deacons responded with an improved 16 — 9 record overall, despite a 2 — 4 mark in ACC competition. The ACC tournament proved to be disappointing for the Deacs as they ended up in seventh place with just 30 points. A trip through Florida by Coach Leighton's squad against tough competition proved to be somewhat successful. Armand Molina held down the number one spot admirably, posting a 22 — 3 record. Other top performers included number two Allen Farfour and number three Tom Keifer.

April 19, 1979 WFL vs. Duke

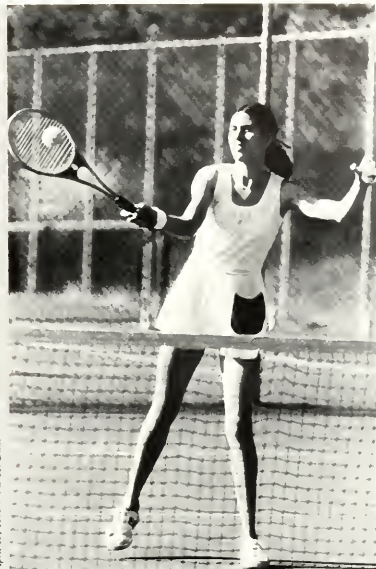

Second-year Coach Sylvia Gilley led a young net team to a successful year. The team finished with a 6-3 record overall in the fall (2-2 in the ACC). Conference victories were over Maryland and NC State. Taking into account the loss of four of the top six players from last year's team, this was considered one of the better seasons in a while for the Lady Deacs. The team was paced by last year's MVP Ann Phelps, who registered an 8-1 fall record, and freshman Kay Anderle. With this young team, the netters are expecting a good deal of success in the future.

WOMEN'S CROSS COUNTRY

February 12, 1979

February 12, 1979

Fall 1979 found the women's cross country team struggling for recognition among intense ACC competition that included three of the nation's top ten teams. Highlighting the season, the team competed in the AIAW National meet for the first time in its five year history. The Lady Deacons won the right to advance to the national meet by finishing third at the Region II, Division II meet in Kentucky, November 3. Wake Forest finished 17th overall among 46 teams in their division.

Newcomers Karen Bartel and Melanie White performed consistently throughout their first year, while sophomores Alisa Davis and Cindy Ross returned to have superior individual performances. The teams youth and the NCAA's new system of division, which should give the team a greater opportunity for advancement in the future, afford hope for the years to come.

Running is the highest mode I have of expressing myself. It's what makes me unique as an individual. Doing well in a race is the best sense of satisfaction I know. My first two seasons were mediocre and the support of a friend kept me going. The biggest achievement in my life was breaking the nine minute barrier in the two-mile. That moment made the last six years of training worthwhile.

The Men's Cross Country team finished with a 1-2 record in dual meet competition. Led by senior Larry Delaplaine and junior Darryl Robinson the harriers gained fifth place in the state meet and sixth in the conference. With seniors Larry Delaplaine, Jack Durkin, and Mark Warren graduating the underclassmen will face a challenge in building a winning program in the 1980 season.

The field hockey team, under the direction of Coach Caroline Brown, came close to their goal of a winning season by bordering the .500 mark. The team posted an upset win over Duke, which had previously been unbeaten by Coach Brown's teams. Five players made the Deep South East Sectionals including: Leanne Book, Laura Dronzek, Stee Brown, Sandy Barbour, and Jinsey Dauk. Captain Alicia Nance and Goal-keeper Cathy Wright will be the only losses next year, leaving a strong nucleus of returning players. With an experienced squad, Coach Brown's team should have its winning season in the upcoming year.

In spite of a record far below the .500 mark, the 1979-80 women's basketball team showed definite improvement from last season's 2-19 mark. Under the direction of highly acclaimed first year coach Wanda Briley, the team played in a new and stronger AIAW division in addition to playing a complete ACC schedule that included nationally ranked teams.

Improvement was evident from the beginning of the season to the end. An early season 31 point loss to Elon was nearly avenged in late season when the Lady Deacs took Elon into overtime. Coach Briley calls the spirited group one of the most hard-working she has ever seen. The team's attitude seemed to be one of its most valuable assets.

Senior Jane Jackson provided the squad with leadership as she averaged over 17 points per game. Barbara Durham, a freshman, provided inside strength by averaging almost 16 points a game.

With over a hundred prospective recruits having already been contacted, the team could conceivably improve as much next season as it did in 1979-80. However, it appears that Wake is still a few years away from competing with the Division I giants of the ACC.

Second year coach Gale Chamblee directed her young volleyball team through an impressive 1979 season that culminated in a NCAIAW championship and a berth in the regional tournament. The team compiled a 20-15 record through the course of the season. The Deacs were undefeated in their district and lost only one match to another Division II team. In addition, the team proved it could compete with Division I teams by finishing third among a strong field at the ECU Invitational. Following the season, the team boosted its record to 24-15 by winning the annual state tournament and advanced to the regional tournament for the first time since 1977. With freshmen comprising more than half the team, Coach Chamblee should have an abundance of talent returning in future years.

During the 1979 season, the Wake Forest Track team made exceedingly good showings in distance running events. In the ACC indoor meet, Larry Delaplaine and Kevin Amigh captured 5th place in the Steeplechase with Darryl Robinson gaining 4th place in the 1500 meter race with a time of 1:53. The upcoming season will be paced by a strong core of returning members and new recruits. Veterans Larry Delaplaine and Darryl Robinson coupled with freshmen Dexter Hawkins and Robert Johnston, will give the Wake Forest Track team a bright future for the 1980 season.

N C A A THIRD PLACE

Copyright 1979

The Wake Forest Golf Team began the Spring of 1979 in expected winning fashion. The team placed second in the Pan-American Invitational and also the Furman Invitational.

In the ACC Championship Tournament Wake Forest won first place honors with Gary Hallberg and Robert Wrenn placing second and fourth respectively.

In the Fall 1979 season the team placed first in the Grandfather Invitational and third in the Cypress Gardens Intercollegiate. Gary Pinns paced the team gaining first place honors at the Cardinal Amateur and the Grandfather Invitational. Good showings were also made by Matt King and Tom Knox who both gained second places in the Cardinal Amateur and the Cypress Gardens Invitational. With returning NCAA Champion Gary Hallberg, and veterans Robert Wrenn, and Gary Pinns. The Wake Forest Golf Team promises another extraordinary winning season in 1980.

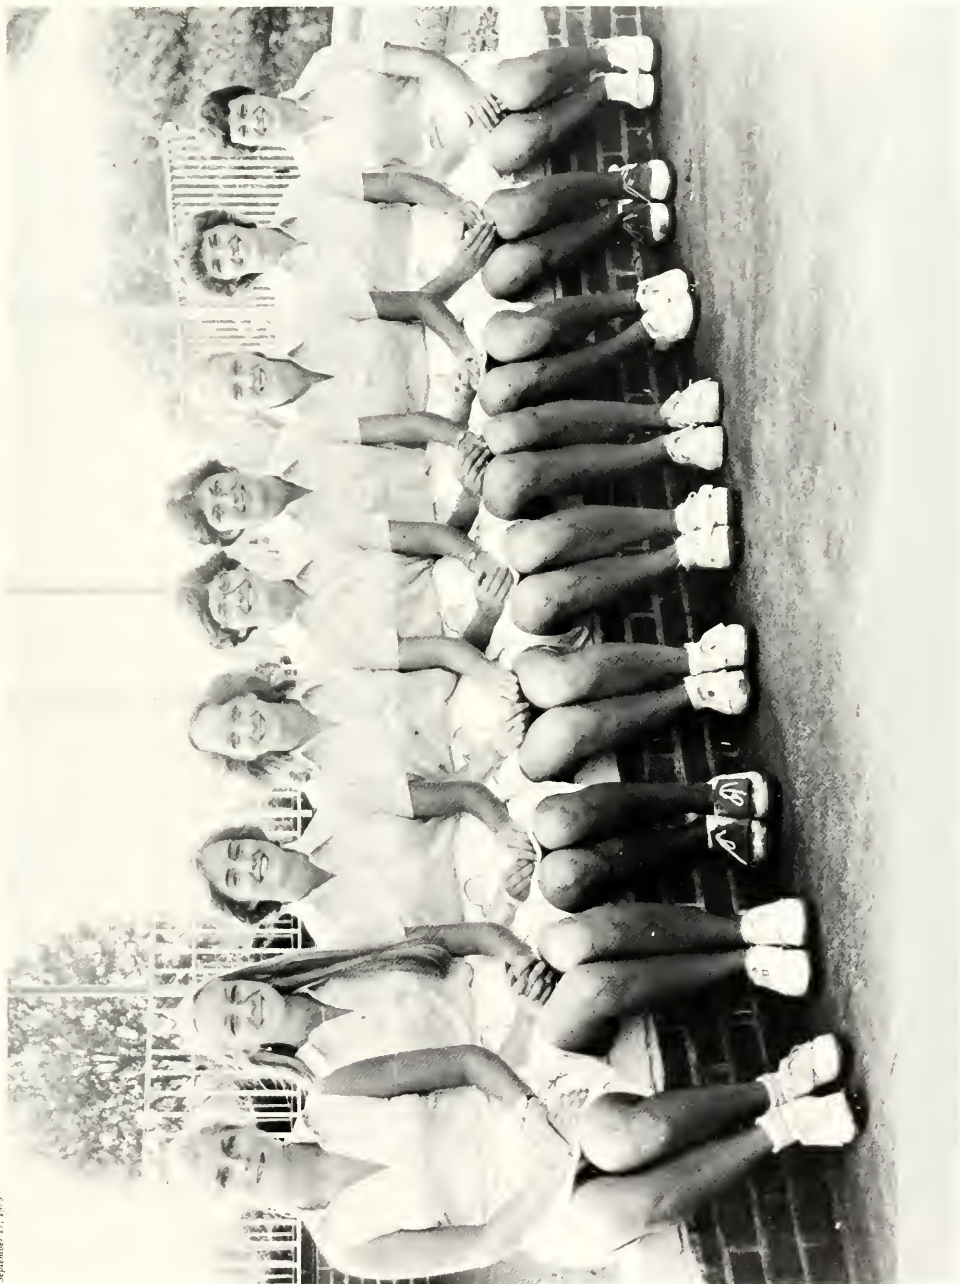

Despite a disappointing third place finish in the state AJAW tournament, the Lady Deacon golfers enjoyed a successful fall season. A 15 stroke victory in the Big Four Tournament highlighted the fall. Wake golfers Charlotte Grant and Amy Geitner took first and second place in that tournament as Wake claimed three of the top four spots. The victory was especially pleasing since Wake Forest hosted the tournament at Old Town Country Club. In other fall action, the Lady Deacons finished second among nine teams in the Duke Fall Invitational. Charlotte Grant consistently held down the number one slot, while Robin Holloway and Patty Jordan proved to be threats in every tournament.

The golfers prepared enthusiastically for the spring schedule, which pitted them against the best teams in the nation. The team currently has access to two championship courses, Bermuda Run and Old Town, which gives it some of the best facilities in the country.

Recruiting between the fall and spring seasons was said to be going well. With every member of this year's team returning, Wake Forest could very well have next fall its best team ever.

April 8, 1979 WFU vs. Clemson

April 1, 1979 WFU vs. UVA

With a strong nucleus from the 1978 squad and the inspired play of several seniors, the 1979 Diamond Deacons posted their winningest record in fifteen years. However, the Deacons, 28-9 overall, finished second in conference play for the second consecutive year with a 9-3 mark. A new ACC rule eliminating the post-season tournament sent regular season champion Clemson to the NCAA tournament. Any Deacon hopes for an at-large bid were quelled by two late season losses.

Seniors Stan Johnson and Bob Hely combined with Chris Hurd to provide the offensive power for the team. Frank and Marty Harnisch also paced the team with consistent hitting and 41 stolen bases between them. Defensively, Senior Jimmy Doherty posted the team's lowest ERA mark, and Warren Newton was undefeated in seven decisions.

The squad suffered conference losses only to Clemson and UNC. Its first conference loss, a grueling 16 inning loss to Clemson in midseason, was perhaps the most disheartening defeat of the year. Clemson's victory over Wake Forest the following day virtually erased the Deacons' chances of winning the conference championship.

The Deac swimmers, like most minor sports at Wake, found the competition within the ACC tough this year. The team's overall record was 4 — 8. Coach Tom Alm, in his third year, and senior swimmers Tom Laraway, Ron Cobb, and Jim Kusel had high hopes at the outset. Strong individual showings were turned in consistently by Mark Hicks, David Linquist, and Rob Leyrer. The loss of this year's seniors will hurt Wake's prospects for future success. Competition with the States of the swimming world isn't going to get any easier.

"The purpose of The Student, Wake Forest's literary magazine, is a dual one. Primarily it serves as an outlet for the originality and creative expression of the students. In this vein we publish outstanding student talent — short stories, poetry, essays, drawings, and photographs.

We also try to bring the arts to Wake Forest by reporting on events in the artistic life of Winston-Salem and by moving beyond the city to interview artists, writers, and critics who are setting the pace within their fields. We hope our readers find their ideas enlightening and provocative." Robin Byrd, Editor.

"A student newspaper should link the tradition of the university to each generation by introducing students to university concerns and the university to student concerns.

Old Gold and Black examines the issues facing the university. Coverage of campus and local events helps students make informed choices when they evaluate the spectrum of opportunities competing for their interests. The Gazette supplement, published four times yearly, explores one topic in depth.

Keeping students abreast of the developments and significance of redefining the university's relationship with the Baptist State Convention was an important challenge for the staff. Returning to a modified version of the traditional nameplate affirmed a commitment to the university's heritage.

If Old Gold and Black upholds its tradition, it must continue as a forum for opinion and as a conscientious source of information for the WF community." — Cathy Woodard, Editor

"The Howler staff — a core group of eight eclectic individuals ably assisted by a promising crop of worthy proteges and ever-roving photographers gathered together under the aegis of creative graphic and verbal expression to publish a year. This formidable task of truly monumental proportions was met with the unfailing hope that theirs would be the true vision to capture the essence of Wake Forest 1980. Buoyed by the ideals of perseverance, patience and poignant good wit, they journeyed from the depths of desperation to the fireside satisfaction with each passing deadline and found that 296 pages of artistic excellence was indeed to be realized." WHICH WAY WAKE FOREST?

When delegates to the North Carolina Baptist Convention met last year in our city and decided that twelve of the thirty-six members of the University's Board of Trustees should be "Evangelical Christians", was it really a great step forward for the University? Or was it merely an act of acknowledging Wake Forest's diversifying student body? Or was it the first step toward autonomy? The decision was probably a mixture of each.

The controversy with the Baptists didn't begin yesterday, or even within the last decade. A series of actions have irked the body, the earliest in 1838 and 1839 when visiting Baptist preachers complained of their treatment at the college and discovered an outlet for whiskey a short distance from the campus. Like its successor, the University, the College was noted for intellectual independence and had a fairly good reputation along the Eastern Seaboard. In the 1920s, the College's President, Dr. William Louis Poteat, became involved in the evolution controversy, taking an affirmative stand for its teaching. This displeased many of the North Carolina Baptists, as did the dancing controversy of 1957. The College and the Convention didn't see eye to eye on that one either, the convention arguing that the land of the campus should be devoted to the glory of God and that it couldn't be as long as dancing was permitted.

Then, in 1976, the University accepted a $300,000 federal grant of which $70,000 was used to build a greenhouse. This bothered the Baptists, not the money so much, for Wake Forest had accepted grants before for instruction and research, but never for bricks and mortar. After much bickering it was decided to accept the grant but match it in another way so that it wouldn't appear a grant, but a part of a money-raising effort.

For the last year it has been hinted that the convention would cut out ties to WFU, but didn't do so. Like a parent punishing an errant child the Convention has sought to deal with the University's growing independence. Using that analogy, Wake Forest is as any child should be: possessing many qualities of the parents, but representing a uniquely independent life. One must never suppress the other.

If Wake Forest is to continue to grow and foster the ideals that have made it the great school it is, it must work for permanent solutions to the differences between those who gave life to the institution and those who inhabit it now. The move of the Convention last year was a compromise — one that should solve the situation temporarily.

Will this be the final end? Will this improve relations? Will this satisfy both sides? How can one tell? One thing is for certain — like the evolution and dancing conflicts before it, this, too, should pass.

H I S T O R Y

There are many among the faculty and students who claim to be loyal Deacons, but few have the proof like Dr. Henry Stroupe. Dr. Stroupe received his B.S. degree in Social Science from Wake Forest in 1935. From 1935 to 1937 Dr. Stroupe was a graduate student assistant while studying for his M.A. in History. From 1937-1942 he was working on his doctorate and teaching in the Wake Forest History department. Dr. Stroupe served as a Navy officer from 1943 to 1946, but immediately thereafter returned to teaching at WF. In 1961, when the Graduate School began, he was appointed its Dean. This fall, Dr. Stroupe took his first leave. The Howler interviewed our "truest Demon Deacon" and here's what he had to say.

"In 1935, there were about 1000 students, all male, except for a few girls who were somehow connected with the faculty. There was only one girl in my graduating class, no blacks and only a few foreigners. President Kitchin was serving at the time. There were about twelve buildings on the old campus in 1935. About one-half of the students lived off campus in boarding houses close by. There was no cafeteria so we had to find some kind of favorite eating establishment or boarding house. It cost about $12-$15 a month for food. Tuition was only around $150 a month. The faculty consisted of about 20 members who were all males, except the school nurse. Classes were held from Monday through Saturday at noon. A large portion of the students were pre-law or pre-med; there was no business school. I would say that the average student could be described as white, male, Baptist and from N.C. Very few students had cars, but there were good bus and train systems from Wake Forest to Durham or Raleigh. Girls were never allowed in the dormitories or in the boarding houses.

"Charlie's Angels"

"If a girl came up to visit you, she stayed in a tourist home. (A tourist home isn't exactly like a motel.) No fun began until Saturday afternoon. If you didn't have a steady girl, chances are you went down to 'Uncle Charlie's Angel Farm.' That's what we called Meredith College, because Charles Brewer was its president. There was no curfew for Wake Foresters, so most of the guys would catch a late train back to Wake Forest called the "Shoo-Fly Express". If you didn't have a date, there was always one movie playing in town, of course only on Saturday nights. Dances couldn't be held on campus so the fraternities held dances in Durham or Raleigh. Pep rallies and bon fires were great social occasions back then. The two literary societies were some of the biggest organizations on campus. The B.S.U. was also one of the largest and most popular groups. George Griffin was its president. Now he is Dr. Griffin of the Religion department. The popularity of these groups died after radio, TV and stereos became popular. Chapel was mandatory 3 times a week. Dr. Poteat had retired by then, but he still taught Sunday School — to a packed auditorium every Sunday. The publications were the same in 1935 as they are now. The Howler had a page of jokes, an original short story, pages of pictures of the staff members' girl friends and a history of the year, written by the class historian-me.

"Beating Carolina!"

"In the 1920's baseball had been the most popular sport, but by 1935 football was gaining in popularity. In 1935 we had a good football team. We beat Carolina then too! N.C. State was our biggest rival, because it was so close by. Baseball was the second most popular sport, then basketball. Golf and tennis were both lower in popularity. I was on the tennis team then. We had to wear long white pants whenever we played, which got really hot sometimes. We had three cheerleaders in 1935. One of them was Jim Mason, who is now the Chairman of the Board of Trustees. The biggest sports event of the year was the Easter Monday baseball game with State in Raleigh. They used to close down all the offices and government buildings, so that everyone could come to the game.

"Women and WFU"

"There are certainly more women enrolled here now than ever before. At one time, President Waite said he wanted to build a 10 foot high wall around campus, to keep the women off completely. He didn't even want them in the same church. The administration has to be more selective in choosing women, because of the housing situation. I can remember a year, maybe in the 60's, when the editors of all three publications and the Student Government officers were all women. I would say that women at Wake Forest have changed apace with women everywhere.

"Quality not Quantity"

"I am hopeful for the future of our relationship with the Baptist Convention. In the next five years or so, we should be able to tell if the individual churches are going to support us, as I would hope they will. Every tribulation makes a stronger Wake Forest. If life is too easy — people become too weak. I do hope that Wake Forest will remain a small, liberal arts university, placing its emphasis on quality not quantity."

Captain Buck Wray gave us some insight in to the Military Science department.

HOWLER: How much military training do most R.O.T.C. professors have?

WRAY: It varies quite a bit, depending on the rank. The captains in the department have an average of 6-8 years of service. A major in the department has 18 years of service and a colonel has 19 years of military service.

HOWLER: What degree do most R.O.T.C. professors hold?

WRAY: Again, it varies. Some have a Bachelor's while many, including myself, are working on a Master's.

HOWLER: What field do most professors hold degrees in?

WRAY: Most of the faculty hold degrees in business or counseling.

HOWLER: How many men and women are in the program? Is there a R.O.T.C. "type"?

WRAY: No, there are all kinds of people interested in the opportunities we have to offer. Approximately 200 freshmen and sophomores are taking R.O.T.C. courses, though they are not enrolled in the program. At present, there are 215 men and 41 women in the program at Wake Forest.

Q. Where do you think the priorities of most students lie?

A. Most people who come here know that this is an academic environment. Studying is a way of life here. Everyone studies here. When people come here, they understand that this is an academic environment.

Q. What part of WFU will you remember most?
A. Of course I'll remember the football part, because that's where I spend most of my time, on the football field or in the team meetings. The people that I have met through the football program who helped me get a scholarship here will be remembered also. It has been a good experience over-all being here.

Q. Does Wake Forest conform to the preconceived notions that you had before coming here as a freshman?
A. Yes, for the reasons that my father, mother, and brother went here and it's the only place I ever applied to. I expected it to be hard, have a friendly atmosphere, and have a beautiful campus; all of which were realized, even down to the cute squirrels.

Q. Where do the priorities of most students lie?

A. Most students came here for an education; if they hadn't wanted a good education they would have gone somewhere else with a more social atmosphere. . . . academics is most important. Athletics and social gatherings take second precedence to academia, but they are available to students when they desire them. The social activities on campus are instrumental in providing a means by which academic tension(s) and frustration(s) can be alleviated.

Q. Ten years from now what will you remember most about WFU?

A. I guess I'll remember the people I've met and the friends I've made. The classes are almost as important but not quite. In classes, the knowledge that I gain is objective and available elsewhere, while the people are one of a kind.

Q. Where do priorities lie?

A. I don't think that the first priority with most students lies in studies. But I do think people who come to WFU want to grow up in a way here that they can't find somewhere else. The commitment, then, is to growing first, with learning in classes one important phase of this process.

Q. Where do the priorities of most students lie?

A. I would say that the social and academic situation here is well balanced. At times, however, it seems as though students put more emphasis on the social side of student life rather than to academics, but as a whole, the average student will heed to the demands of studying and, yet, have as much fun as possible with his friends and acquaintances. I would probably note that the professors and instructors encouraged and stimulated a sense of experimentation in the student and that they all wanted their students to ask questions or to get their feet wet, so to speak.

Q. Why did you come to Wake Forest?
A. I came because I had always wanted to come to Wake, but also because it's a small school. I did not want to go to a large university. I wanted to go to a small university where the chances to excel are better. . . . If you don't give Wake a chance, if you don't stay here on the weekends, you don't know what the school is like. . . . I think WFU is a great place to be!

Q. Is it disheartening to go to play a game with only a few spectators compared to the thousands that attend the men's basketball games?
A. It is in a way, especially compared to high school when a few people in a small gym seemed like a lot. I can see though that we play on a different level than the guys. We wish more people would come to watch us; I think it would help us a lot. It always helps when you have a crowd behind you. (Girls Basketball Team).

Q. What kind of social life is at Wake Forest?

A. It's organized in terms of fraternities and societies, but other friends outside of these groups play a big part also. People don't limit themselves to that one organization. I don't feel pressured by the society I'm in to only go out with certain guys . . .

Q. Where do the priorities of most students lie?

A. I think it's academics definitely but I think social life also plays a big part. Students study first and then go out to socialize. On weekends, I think it (social life) is organized, during the week it's more spontaneous. . . . A common bond of everyone is knowledge, goal(s) to learn and going to classes together helps the diverse group of students to get along well together.

Q. Do you feel that society life is the most advantageous for you to have a good social being here on campus?

A. I don't think I have to join one but I would love to join one because it's a good way to get to know a lot of girls. It's a good social outlet.

Q. Why did you come to WFU?

A. I wanted to go to a school with a good academic reputation. I wanted to go somewhere fairly small. Every one was so friendly to me when I visited. It made a big impression on me. Everybody seemed to know and care about each other.

Q. Do you feel pressures to conform to others?
A. People pretty much let you be what you want to be. When you go to parties, there is some pressure to drink a lot but if you don't want to drink, usually there is no problem.

Freshman Math or Math/Bus.

Q. Is WFU what you pictured?
A. NO WAY!! I never had to study that much in high school. I came down here and I saw and heard how hard it was. I could see for myself that I was going to have to study. I wasn't used to that. I've also experienced a culture shock. Even though my mother is from the South, I had no idea that the South was like this. It is very different up North. People aren't as friendly up North, nor are they as open. The attitudes are different down here. The people are more honest.

—Taking it with you

Graduation, 5/21/79

It all begins one hot August afternoon with an orientation talk beneath the lofty steeple of Wait Chapel. Four years later it all ends with commencement exercises beneath that same lofty steeple. With diploma grasped firmly in hand and feet itching to cross the threshold of the "real" world, the graduate may surprisingly find that he really isn't leaving it all behind. The academic achievements and extra-curricular activities, the soaring triumphs and devastating frustrations, the rare moments and colorful memories all combine to define the Wake Forest graduate and guide him for years to come. Whether consciously or not, you can't help taking it with you.

May the 1980 Howler, as it endlessly decorates the coffee tables of America, remind you that, indeed, you have taken it with you.
